

Equinet e-newsletter - The new EQUINET website has been launched!

Dear subscriber,

It is with great pleasure that we write you to let you know that the new Equinet website was launched recently at www.equineteurope.org - richer in information, more user-friendly and more interactive.

It features an important section on European equality bodies where visitors can find comprehensive and up-to-date profiles of Equinet members. These profiles allow you to read more about the grounds and fields of discrimination covered by each equality body, as well as their powers, activities, structure and contact details.

The website also provides up-to-date information about European policy/legal developments in the field of equality and non-discrimination, and publicises events and activities initiated by the network and its members.

On the occasion of launching its new website, Equinet discussed with Mr. Jozef de Witte (Chair of the Equinet Board and Director of the Belgian Centre for Equal Opportunities and Opposition to Racism), about the establishment, challenges and opportunities of Equinet. We think it is a frank, interesting and at times amusing interview that we encourage you to read in the Member in the Spotlight section.

Finally, we encourage you to get acquainted with this new website in the best way possible: explore as many sections as you can, open the links, play with the menus and options, and maybe most importantly, let us know what you think at info@equineteurope.org.

We thank you for your sustained interest in Equinet - the European Network of Equality Bodies.
